OUR "SUPPLEMENT EDITION."

Newsdealers throughout the world should bear in mind the fact that with this issue of the POLICE GAZETTE we present our annual supplement depicting Tom King and Jem Mace in the ring, surrounded by nearly every old-time sporting man of the day-Nov. 25, 1862. The portraits are life-like, and the engraving will be well worthy of a place in every sport patron's gallery of art. Our readers should take particular pains to see that the engraving is served them with this issue free of extra charge. In addition we present all the recent happenings of the day, including the stories and delineations of the arrival of Oarsman O'Connor in America and the Dixon-Murphy contest in the Gladstone Club, Providence, R. I.

We also desire to call the attention of the advertising public to the pages devoted to their use. A perusal of these pages will, no doubt, impress upon their minds the advisability of placing their "ads" where they will do the most good. Excellence in journalism is always appreciated, and enterprising business men know where to give their prospective customers the straight tip as to where the cheapest and, at me time, the best goods can be obtained.

THE DIXON-MURPHY CONTEST.

There were those who thought that Johnny Murphy could easily defeat George Dixon. There were others who were willing and anxjous to wager that Murphy was no match for the little black man. These latter betted advisedly and went home with their pockets lined with pecuniary substantiality.

Dixon and Murphy met in the Gladstone Club in Providence, R. I., on Oct. 23, and there did battle for honors and stakes.

Dixon, the colored pugilist, did about as he pleased with Murphy and, although the latter was vanquished, he was game to the end, and convinced the spectators that he was no mean foeman, and that he was able to keep his end up with any of the feather-weight pugilists extant.

Forty rounds were fought, and when time was finally called youngster Murphy, although compelled to admit that he was beaten, came to the front like a solid man and announced his desire to meet the black as soon as the latter again chose to contend against him.

It will be a lively match when next they meet, as honors are exceedingly easy, and as it is a toss up as to who will have the ultimate advantage.

Tell-Tale Talk---Jim Sullivan's Rhyme ... Sheridan and Flynn.

AMBERG YERSUS DALY.

I went down to one of our big docks the other day to say good-by to Tote Du Crow, clown, acrobat and dancer, just as he was about sailing for Cuba. A motley concourse of polyglot agents and artists were assembled.

Most of the performers were engaged for Pubillones' Circus in Havana.

"CLOWNS ARE SCARCE!"

There was Tote Du Crow, the pet clown, known as 'El Totito," dark, smiling and supple. There was Nattalio Lowande, the agent, affable, excitable and officious. The Zola family, three in number, were there, and the Melrose Brothers, acrobats, and the Mazzarellas, the high kickers, and George Bliss and Charley Her bert, general performers.

It was a quiet gathering on that ill-smelling dock.

Just before the ship Mendez Nunez sailed, I took the opportunity of interviewing Tote Du Crow about clowns and clowning. He rolled and lit a cigarette, sat on a trunk and told me all he knew on the subject in his deliberate way.

"Clowns, speaking clowns, are rare nowadays," said Du Crow. "They command from $100 to $200 a week. There are no more schools for clowns. There are too many candy butchers who call themselves clowns. 'Clowns' suits range from $30 to $50 in price, but I have one that cost $100. The wigs are inexpensive. We cover our faces with a mixture of glycerine and bismuth. Some use cooked lard and bee almond oil. Jos. Hayden is the pet clown of England. call in Spain. Frank Brown has right of way in South America. Alexander Zanfretti is the best legitimate all-round clown in the United States. Tommy Dare excels on the horizontal bar. Billy Burke is great at knockabout business. Jerry Blossom, who now acts under the name of Allen, was for a long time the favorite clown of India.

"Geo. H. Adams is a good specimen of the Humpty-Dumpty, the pantomime clown nowadays. But I se they're getting ready to haul up the gang plank. I must say good-bye." And Tote Du Crow shook hands and vanished into Dunlevy of the New Park Theatre tells a poker story about Billy Barry, of Barry and Fay, that you may not have heard. Barry has a strong predilection for the charms of the jack pot and very often it gets him into tight quarters financially. On such occasions he resorts to his manager for an advance on his profits. He came to Dunlevy one day with a long statement that he had invested $1200 the evening before in an ace full, but that there happened to be four kings against him, and would Mr. Dunlevy kindly advance the money until Saturday. "I'll never play again," said Barry, "see, I've got both hands up!" and he showed the palms of his hands above his head. On the strength of such a solemn affidavit as that Dunlevy let Barry have the money. Next week Barry came around with another long face and $600 to the bad. "S'help me I'll never play poker again, Dun, if you fix me this time. See, I've got both hands up.' "Well, you put both hands up before," said Dunlevy. Then Billy Barry called in Hugh Fay and much to his astonish ment, got him to put up his hands, too, "See, Dun," said Barry, "here's four hands up, mine and my partner's. There's a double affidavit for ye." Dunlevy wilted. Of course Barry got the money

I went down to Niblo's the other night to see Wilton Lackage as Nero in the spectacular melodrama of that name, produced by Locke and Davis, and staged by Max Freeman.

The basis of the plot is the love of Nero for the beautiful Acte, and the schemes of Agripping, the empress's mother, and Sabina, the bride, to frustrate their love. There is the warm, amorous scene, the melodramatic parting, the despair of the emperor, the sacking and burning of the city, the death of the tyrant.

Of course there are dances, marches, pageants, leopards, lions, in "Nero," amid the pageantry and glare of warlike peace.

Wilton Lackaye was majestic, magnetic and mag nificent as Nero, every inch the lover, poet and imperator, whom history has faintly limned for us. Carrie Turner, as Acte, was sympathetic, sweet-voiced and artistic. Alice Fisher was sufficiently virago-like as the imperial mother, and Blanche Weaver was rather fluffy as the jealous bride.

Henrietta Lander hustled on in a red gown, and tried to do and be something that I haven't as yet quite found out, and hustled off again.

The lions didn't show up on the first night. They were detained at Quarantine and their luggage was delayed at the Custom House.

The lines of the libretto of "Nero" sounded as though they had been manufactured by Max Freeman, they were so redolent of the land of sauerkraut, limburger and frankfurter. M'lle Gillert, who has grown inordinately fat, did a graceful ballet dance.

Signorina Rosita made a hit in her Spanish dance and got an encore. I think she is better than Carmencits or Otero, the much puffed divas of the town. The supes and coryphees, slaves and so forths were

'Make it fifty while you're about it, you owe me $300 salary. I can afford to let you deduct."

Jim Sullivan, the handsome young comedian. has written a song called "McDowd's Initiation" and Charley Reed has promised to sing it. Here's a veri and the chorus as a sample:

The second degree was ready,
And they got McDowd to rights.

They made him take of all his slot
They dressed him the tights.

Then he was told he must be weighed, And he was satisfied.

Then they put him on Tim Bolan's back, And then his feet were tied.

When he was in position

They welted him till they were tired— He was in an awful fix— The way he yelled and screamed that r Was heard all over town, And for six or seven weeks from that McDowd could not alt down

They smashed him and they lashed him,

They tore up all his clothes.
Then they tarred and feathered him,
And washed him with a hose;

They made him drink toba They made him smoke a They made him smoke a lamp, They pulled his ears and punched his nose, Sheridan and Flynn, clean and clever comedians, played at Miner's Bowery Theatre last week. Their extravaganza, "Maloney," caught on, but they're worthy of something better.

I think Sheridan and Flynn are about ready for farce They've good people around them as a company. George and Marie Nelson are favorites.

Carr and Tourjee, the musical team, "Ah, there, Professor!" were good.

Minnie Lee received an encore for her ballads.

A LIVE LION.

Louise Dempsey had some new songs.

Jim Hoey did his well-worn monologue. The other night I dropped over to the Grand Opera House to see Jos. Haworth do comedy in "Aunt Jack," and Ffolliot Paget do the part played by Agnes Booth.

Haworth once upon a time was a failure as a comic opera singer, you know. He now promises to be a failure as a comedian. Haworth certainly can't replace Holland. He is theatric, studied, dry and self-conscious. In classic or romantic costume parts, Haworth is all right. In the jester's motley or modern evening dress Haworth is painfully all wrong. I'm afraid Haworth thinks he's versatile. But he is not. He's Haworth. and that's all. He would have made a great preacher. Ffoiliot Paget can't play "Aunt Jack," and besides she makes up too much. That part would suit Mary Shaw to the ground.

Lewis Baker was capital as a dudesque lord. Amberg and Daly have had a row, and it is all about "Die Wilde Jagd," a play which Amberg has produced at his theatre and of which Daly claims he has the sole right to produce in this country.

In view of the fact that Daly often gets his best ideas from Amberg's players, the consensus of public opinion, as far as I've been able to gather it, is in favor of

Daly is a great master of the translation, adaptation and mutilation of plays. At any rate Amberg got ahead, this time, of Daly in the matter of production. The play "Die Wilde Jagd" caught on at his popular and well-conducted theatre.

If later in the season Daly will produce it at his uptown tinsel and gingerbread box, and will tack his name on it as author, that remains to be seen.

It was simply the old story. Miss Booth was inclined to be somewhat romantic, while Price was handsome and well educated, besides being possessed of all the money he desired. What caused Sode's sudden illness and why he left his house and took rooms at a hotel before he recovered are questions that are being asked on every side, but which no one can answer, as neither he nor his wife appears to have made any confidants.

STABBED BY HER HUSBAND'S MISTRESS.

Mrs. John Barber, of Lima, O., was recently the victim of a crime for which her slayer may suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

For a long time Mrs. Barber had suspected that her husband was not true to her, and the fact was forcibly impressed upon her mind when he left home and located in Ransom, Mich.; with a paramour.

Mrs. Barber determined that the guilty ones should not continue their illicit intercourse, and she followed them to Ransom in order to prevail upon her husband to return to his home. This idea was put into practice partially because of the fact that when Barber left he forgot to take his six children with him, and partially because Mrs. Barber had still in her heart lingering love for her husband.

When Mrs. Barber reached Bansom she immediately repaired to the house where the two were sojourning. She implored her husband to return home with her. He wavered between right and wrong. The woman interfered and a quarrel ensued. Then Barber's mistress drew a knife and plunged it to the handle in Mrs.

AN INDIANAPOLIS SCANDAL.

Society is agog in Indianapolis, Ind., over the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. A. Frederick Sode have separated, and that the wife has filed suit for divorce. They were married only last June, and the lady was very popular in Indianapolis society. Her maiden name was Anderson and she was conceded to be one of the handsomest, brightest and most attractive in a large circle of local society ladies.

Miss Anderson received the attention of James G. Douglass, a wealthy citizen many years her senior, about three years ago, and, to the great surprise of the friends of both, they were privately married. Douglass's family refused to recognize the young wife, but society opened its arms to her, and her newly acquired riches enabled her soon to become a greater favorite than ever.

In less than a year after her marriage Douglass dropped dead at English's Opera House while he and his wife were watching a play. The young widow discovered soon afterwards that her husband had deeded all of his property to relatives before their marriage. and suit is now pending to set aside these deeds and

Dixon was away from home on the day in question, and on his return he saw his wife leaving the house. She did not see him, but he got his rifle and followed her at a distance. She went into some woods near by and her husband watched her. Halsey came up and Dixon soon had his suspicions confirmed. Then he crept slowly through the thick woods until he was near enough to fire, and taking aim, he pulled the trigger. The ball took effect in Halsey's temple and he fell dead by the side of his slayer's unfaithful wife. Dixon then told his wife that he intended to kill her also, but her piteous pleadings caused him to desist. He contented himself by

Late in the evening Charles Halsey, an elder brother of the dead man, hunted Dixon down, and found him at the house of a friend. Halsey pulled out a large revolver to shoot Dixon, but other persons interfered, saying that if he wanted to fight he would have to fight fair and give Dixon a chance. Ten paces were quickly stepped off and the two men put in position with their weapons in their hands.

"Are you ready?" rang out a shrill voice, and the duelists stood like statues.

Then "One-two-three-fire!" and the two men began to shoot.

Every chamber was emptied from their pistols, Dixon stood still and watched 'Halsey, who began to stagger, and in a few seconds fell to the ground and was dead. Dixon was not touched. Four of his five balls took effect in Halsey's body. After the duel Dixon was escorted to the home of a friend. He has not yet been arrested, and the people of Alleghany county say no sheriff can take him. Heretofore he has been a peaceable man and well known throughout the

BROKE UP A SEMINARY.

The girlies of Evelyn College, Princeton, N. J., are all broken up over the recent pilfering scance of an inmate, and there couldn't possibly be more excitement if somebody had yelled "Rats!" in their midnight dormitory.

One of the female professors of the college went out for a walk one day during the week, taking with her a Russia-leather pocketbook containing $50. When she returned she changed her dress, but forgot about the money in her pocket. Some time afterward she went to get the pocketbook, but it was not there.

She came to the conclusion that she lost the money while out walking, and put an advertisement in a newspaper, offering a liberal reward to the person who should return the money and the pocketbook, which had this French inscription inside: "Magasin du Louvre to M. P., Evelyn College."

On the following morning the first clue to the mystery was found when Eliza McCarthy, a young woman employed in the college, gave Miss McIlvaine, the principal of the college, notice that she was going away. She wanted to go at once. Then Miss McIlvaine suspected that she had the money, and also some silverware which had disappeared. The young woman was told she could not go until she was searched. She objected to being detained declaring she knew nothing of the theft, but when she found her protestations were of no avail and that Policeman Snook was on hand, she confessed and gave up the money and silverware. Miss McIlvaine allowed her to de part with some friendly advice. She took the 9:08 morning train for New York.

Freelove threw her husband out of doors and then threw his clothes from an attic window after him. Mrs. Freelove took in boarders, one of whom was objectionable not only to the husband, but also to the neighbors. The husband took up his residence in his father's house, adjoining the one occupied by his wife, and paid little or no attention to the goings on in his wife's home. This angered Mrs. Freelove and led her to have divorce papers drawn up.

MURPHY WANTS MORE.

[WITH ILLUSTRATION AND PORTRAITS.]

The battle between George Dixon, the colored feather-weight, of Boston, Mass., and Johnny Murphy, Jake Kilrain's protege, also of the Hub, which has for some time past been a sporting topic among the thousands who are patrons of pugilism, was decided in the now famous Gladstone Athletic Club, of Providence, R. I., on Oct. 23. The puglists fought according to "Police Gazette" rules, at 115 pounds for a purse of $1,500, with small gloves. Both pugilists specially trained for the encounter, and were in the pink of condition, and after they had weighed in on Oct. 23, the friends of the respective men were confident that the battle would be an obstinate and protracted one, barring some accident or a knockout.

GETS IT IN THE NECK.

Sporting men from all parts of the country jour-neyed to witness the fight, and Providence was the

The exterior of the club room on the evening of the fight presented an animated appearance. A tremendous crowd was in the street trying to gain admittance by all kinds of means, and even those who had procured pasteboards, for which divers prices were paid, could not gain an entrance until they were pushed, jostled and finally had to struggle with the police.

The spectators who were fortunate enough to get in at all were packed like sardines, while outside a howling mob clamored for admittance. At 8½ o'clock Murphy and his seconds were on hand, but Dixon did

One of the officers of the club then jumped into the ring and announced that Dixon would forfeit the fight if he didn't enter instanter. The referee did not back up the statement, however. Half an hour later-Dixon reached the building, but the crowd was so great he could not enter. The police had to clear a passage for the colored lad. At 9 o'clock Murphy entered the ring and stripped for business. Dixon followed a

The men weighed in in Boston. Murphy weighed a good strong 114 pounds, but by inflating his lungs he made the scales balance. Dixon weighed a strong 113 pounds, but couldn't lift the 114-pound weight.

Among the sporting men present were Mike Kelly, the baseballist. With him were Dick Wakely, Phil Lynch, Jack McAuliffe, Louis Seamers, Ted Foley, Judge Newton, Frank Stevenson. All the afternoon trains from Boston brought crowds of men who were anxious to see the great contest. There were Capt. Cooke, Larry Killian, Jimmy Colville, Billy Mahoney, John J. Murphy, Mike Gleason, Dan Murphy, John Campbell, Florrie Sullivan, Jimmie Hurd, Charlie Daley, W. H. Miller, Mike Kelly, John J. Braham, Spencer Williams, Ned Holske, Geo. Wilman, Dr. Ordway and Ned McAvery.

Tom O'Bourke tossed for choice of corners, and, as usual, won. He chose the corner in which Patsy Cardiff. Jack Williams and many others met defeat. "That's the unlucky corner," shouted some one in the crowd. "Never mind; we don't depend on luck." O'Rourke replied, smiling. Dixon weighed exactly 11314 pounds at 4 o'clock, but a great porterhous steak added at least a pound to his avoirdupois. He wore white trunks and was seconded by Tom O'Rourke and Howard Hodgkins. The white boy weighed 114 pounds and wore short knickerbockers of dark blue. His seconds were Johnny Powers and Danny Gill. The timekepers were Jesse Brown for the club. Handsome Dan Murphy for his namesake, and Mike Bradley, of Boston, for Dixon.

In the betting Dixon was the favorite, the odds being $100 to $80, and $50 to $40. Jimmy Colville disposed of $200 in a short time, he taking the Dixon end. Murphy's friends backed him so heartily, however, that even bets were asked for before the men entered the ring. The first round was a corker. The men sparred but a few seconds, and then they went at it hammer and tongs. Dixon did most of the leading, and invariably Murphy responded with short-arm blows. It was a savage round all through. Both punched hard, and Dixon had the best of it. Both were puffing hard when

The second round was opened with a rush. Dixon led as usual, and then there was a rattling exchange of When the men stepped back Murphy was bleeding freely from the nose, and the blood had been besmeared over his face. Dixon didn't show any signs of punishment, barring a swelling of the left eye. First blood was allowed for Dixon.

Then they tried another rally, and Murphy came out of it a little groggy. The men were fighting at a terrible pace, which astonished everybody. Dixon landed a hard left on Murphy's jaw, and followed it up with hot ones on the face, jaw and ribs. Then he planted both fists squarely on the jaw.

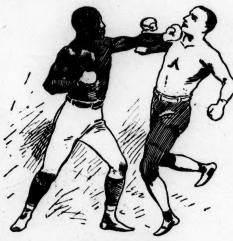

DIXON GETS A WINDER.

Another clinch followed and both men worked their arms like piston rods. Dixon rushed at Murphy like a young bull. Murphy dodged, caught Dixon on the hip and then floored him with a well-directed righthander under the chin. Dixon jumped up and swung for Murphy's jaw, but he wasn't there. He tried it again in a second, and landed heavily.

ROUND 3-Dixon opened by landing both hands in Murphy's face, Murphy making a light return. Then Dixon planted his left heavily in Murphy's stomach, and at the same time caught him under the ear with his right. He led again and landed on the neck and made the white lad grunt with a savage right upper cut on the wind. Murphy rallied slightly and tapped Dixon twice on the jaw, but failed to connect with a swinging left. Dixon found Murphy's neck and face with four left-handers. Both were fighting hard when time was called.

ROUND 4-Both men led and missed. Then Dixon caught Murphy full in the face with a swinging left. It was a hard blow. A few seconds later Dixon chased his man around the ring, caught him with his left on his neck, and then swung a vicious right upper cut, taking Johnnie squarely on the chin. Then followed a clinch and a perfect hurricane of short arm blows ending the round.

A BIFF ON THE CHIN.

ROUND 8-Dixon forced the fighting, and landed right and left. He got in some terrific punches on Murphy's stomach, and the latter made but one return, a weak one. Dixon had it all his own way.

ROUND 9—Dixon went in to finish Murphy, but he didn't succeed. He rained blow after blow on the white lad's face, jaw, neck and stomach. Murphy was very weak, but he didn't fall. He took some awful punishment, but didn't once show the white feather. He was almost gone when time was called.

ROUND 10-Murphy came up fresher than was expected. Dixon went at him like a tiger, but Murphy took his gruel without a murmur.

After 2 hours and 38 minutes of hammer and-tongs fighting Dixon knocked his man out. It was all onesided from the first. Dixon had everything his own way. Murphy's hard luck followed him in this battle. as in his last with Cal McCarthy, but he showed more pluck and endurance than is generally seen in the ring. He broke the thumb of his left hand in the very first round, and was practically helpless throughout the fight. He stood up for 40 rounds and allowed Dixon to make a chopping block of him without wincing. The last four rounds were sickening. Murphy's left ear was almost torn from his head, and the blood ran in streams over his body. In the fortieth round his body looked as though it had been flayed. He didn't drop, but he was staggering against the Dixon won the fight with scarcely a scratch. His left eye was swollen a little, but he didn't look as though he had been through a 40-round fight.

George Dixon was born at Halifax, N. S., on July 29, 1861. He is 5 feet 3 inches in height. Tom O'Rourke, his present manager and backer, took the dusky pugilist in tow about three years ago and started him on his career as a professional fighter. Dixon fought his first battle on Sept. 21, 1887, defeating young Johnson in three rounds. Mack was the next victim. He lasted five rounds. Early in 1888, Charles Parton, of England, was glad to stop after the sixth round, and a few weeks later Barney Finnegan was whipped in seven rounds. Paddy Kelly was encouraged by a host of supporters when he ran up against Dixon, who was almost alone in the hall. He, however, knocked out Kell, in the fifteenth round. Dixon's next fight was with Thomas Doherty for the 105-pound championship of the world. The battle resulted in a draw after ten rounds had been fought. After whipping Jimmie Brackett in short order Dixon fought three drawn battles with Hank Brennan. Dixon's friends claim he was robbed of victory each time. Billy James, an Englishman, was besten in three rounds by George, in May, 1889. In October of the same year Dixon and Brennan met for the fourth time in a 27-round draw. Last year he defeated Eugene Hornbacker in the second round. On Feb. 7, 1890. Dixon fought a 70-round battle with Cal McCarthy, at Boston. It resulted in a draw. In the Pelican Club, London, June 27, 1890, Dixon met and defeated Nunc Wallace for the bantam championship of the world and a purse of £500.

Johnny Murphy first sought fame and fortune in the ring seven years ago, when he was twenty years old. His first fight was with Tom Crowley, whom he defeated in two rounds. Jack Williams, a clever bantam, was next matched against Murphy, but he stopped after enduring the little Bostonian's rushes for seven rounds. Jake Kilrain saw this fight, and picked Murphy out as a world-beater in his class. They became fast friends and went to Baltimore to-gether. In the Monumental City Murphy defeated Bill Young in six rounds. Then he fought a drawn battle of seventeen rounds with Ike Weir.

Murphy has been the boxing instructor at the Harvard University for some years, and is liked by both the Faculty and students. On April 26 of last year Murphy fought Cal McCarthy in Boston. The contest was spirited, and up to the time Murphy broke his arm in the fourth round he had a decided advantage over his opponent. He was forced to withdraw, and McCarthy was declared the winner.

Prince Regent, the great five-year-old by Mambring King, dam Estabella by Alcantara, who beat Pamlico so easily at Buffalo in straight heats, 2:1634, 2:1634, 2:18, is claimed to be a trotting bred trotter of "pures ray serene." We doubt if there are many trotters on the turf who have more crosses of thoroughbred blood than Prince Regent. Parties who claim that he is a pure bred trotter either do so from ignorance or with the intention to deceive. Mambrino King, sire of Prince Regent, was by Mambrino Patchen, first dam by Edwin Forrest; second dam by Birmingham, thoroughbred; third dam by Bertrand, thoroughbred; fourth dam by Sumpter, thoroughbred; fifth dam by imp. #### CAREY BREAKS THE RECORD.

The annual fall handicap meeting of the Princeton University Athletic Association was held on Oct. 18 at Princeton, N. J. and was remarkable for the fast time made in the 100 and 200-yard dashes by Luther Carey. of the class of '93. Four experienced timers gave him 91/4 seconds as a record for 100 yards, which breaks the world's record, made by John Owen, Jr., of Detroit, in Washington, and 22 seconds for 220 yards on a curved track, equalling the American record for the same distance straightaway. The timers—Dr. Bergin, V. B. Gulick and Mr. Charles White, of Princeton—have made affidavit that all the watches gave the same time, 91/4 seconds, and that it is correct.

Starter Goldie and others, who stood near him, have sworn that Carey did not beat the pistol, and Measurers Professor H. H. Smith, of the Surveying Department; W. C. Bryan, J. P. Parker and Mr. Massena that the track is full length.

Levelers re-examined the track and found it 2-68 feet up grade.

After giving Florence the go by, Mease made love to Miss Raymond and finally married her. A few evenings ago Miss Tyler went to the house where the new made couple were sipping the delicacies of their honeymoon and confronted the husband with. "I want my ring and photograph, Eugene Mease." The package was immediately delivered, but as Miss Tyler was leaving the house she suddenly turned, and placing a revolver at Eugene's faithless breast fired. Fortunately by a sudden movement sidewise he re-ceived the bullet in his shoulder. Mease fell to the the shot, and, entering, arrested Miss Tyler.

The citizens of Akron, Ohio, have suffered greatly at the hands of a daring band of footpads, who have been burglarizing the town for many days past. Between the hours of 1 and 2 a.m. a few mornings ago, Mrs. Merriman, who resides with her son, W. K. Merriman, on North Sain street, was awakened by the flash of dark lanterns in her room. She awoke to find four masked men, who quickly bound her with a rope. They then went to the servant's room where a similar scene was enacted, and Mr. Merriman's room was forced into by the quartette, who broke the door from its hinges. Merriman was dragged from bed and compelled to open the safe, from which the men took about $2,000. Merriman was then tied to his bedpost by the robbers, who made their escape in a

He ordered the Grand Jury to return indictments against all card-players, no matter how high in social position they might be. He also told them not to discriminate in regard to sex, and declared he wanted the breaking of the law stopped.

"TO JOHN L SULLIVAN:

"I must say that I am more than surprised to hear the re-marks Sullivan has passed of late regarding the championehip. If he is the champion, that is, wishes to be called so, why don't he fight me? "Now, readers of the world of sport, this is how Sullivan has changed? Some months ago I posted £750 in the Sportman's office at London, challenging Sullivan to meet me for £6,000. He brought the Mississippi business in to get out of it. I don't want to cast any slur on John, but he showed the cur and withdrew, putting the Mississippi business in as a blind. What I ask is, has Sullivan done mere than I or others? He beat Ryan, of course; stopped several other mugs, Slade and so on; falled to stop Mitchell, and took upward of two hours to stop Mitchell, and took upward of two hours to stop Mitchell.
"Now, what was either of these men's performances before

"Now, what was either of these men's performances before they met the great John L? Why, Mitchell sparred and bluffed all over America and England and never sparred a straight go. Mitchell's only genuine fights are one with Jack Burke in England and with Sullivan in France. Elirain never knew the prise ring till he met Smith, and these are Sullivan's best feats. I ring till he met Smith, and these are Sullivan's best leats. I have besten more men in one year than Sullivan has in his whole career. John would never have been known if he had come out within the last couple of years. In his time he had nothing to meet. All his performances have been in stopping men is four or five rounds, and men who have had no class. The proof of this is that he stuck to America; but the first time he left America he falled to show any form. Whenever he fa to stop an opponent an excuse followed. The fight with Kilrain was a disgrace to any man who had a reputation, and the go with Mitchell was a Punch and Judy show, or, in other words, 'Mould him while I bate him.'

"So let Sullivan put up or shut up as regards who is the beman to-day. Third class is his corner in the fistic world."

Judging from the Australian's letter, he must have been clo ely perusing "The Life and Battles of John L. Sullivan," as published by the Folice GAERTE, for he makes a retrospective review of Bullivan's battles in the arena in a confattering to the retired champion.

Sullivan should at one reply to the Australian, not in a long screed, but in one short, soul-stirring paragraph, which should read: "John L. Sullivan, the undefeated chamwhich should read: "John L. Sullivan, the undefeated champion of America, will meet Slavin for any sum from $10,000 to $55,000 and the championship of the world." It Sullivan came out flat-footed and agreed to meet Slavin, who is eager and anxious to fight and defend the championship which he holds, Sullivan would be looked upon as a hero, and the masses of the sporting men in both hemispheres would indorse his action.

Sullivan was challenged by Slavin over a year ago, when the latter left Australia desiring to meet Sullivan, but, strange to say, the American representative even before he but, strange to say, the American representative even before he retired did refuse to arrange a match with the Australian, and his refusal created no little surprise.

Sullivan still clings to the title of champion of the world, and that sign is attached to his name on the advertising bills of the theatrical company that he is traveling with. His many admirers still assume that he is the champion, and yet when a foreigner who has won his spurs and stood the baptism of fire on the pugilistic battle-field throws down the gauntiet before him, he declines to meet him.

Slavin probably would not be so eager to meet
John L. Sullivan if the latter would drop the title of champion of the world, which every one who is conversant with prise ring ethics, rules, etc., is well aware that Sullivan has no right to claim. Joe Coburn or Tom Allen might just as well claim the title of champion of America as Sullivan to claim the title of champion of the world. Allen was champion of America, so was Joe Coburn, and the latter retired undefeated, but when he he did not affix the title of champion to his name only when it was prefixed with X.

It is true Sullivan did hold the championship of the world, and he gained that title by defeating Jake Kilrain for $20,000, the 'Police Gasette' championship belt and the cham-pionship of the world. According to the rules governing the championship, a champion holds that title as long as he accepts all bona fide challenges and defends it against all comers. When Slavin left Australia to gain the title of champion of the world, and he has so far continued on his journey without having to procure a lay-over ticket. He is eager to attempt to only obstacle in his path which prevents him from idered the Simon pure champion of the world, and that obstacle is Sullivan.

The general public, and especially the sporting element in both hemispheres who delight to see, read and speculate upon the result of big championship contests, are eager to tween the Irish-Australian and the Irish-American gladiators, and the only drawback to the proposed match being ratified is the fact that the American representative is halling n two opinions, and does not know whether to follow the stage or the prize ring.

Sullivan has no excuse to offer for his failure to pick up the gauntiet Slavin throws at his feet, except that he claims that he is an actor and is going to follow the uncertain ortunes of a Thespian. In the meantime there are two Eich no-ds in the field, Slavin, with the championship, and in posses m of the "Police Gazette" championship belt that represent

Many have an idea that Sullivan is afraid to meet oubt, a great pagille for he have their be exploits in the prise ring. Cultimen ches. Biavin is, no exploits in the prise ring. Sullivan has the youth, height, weight, courage and the bettering abilities, and by combining agility and muscle with common sense and cool judgment, he should be able to prove that he is still a champion, no matter how great a pugilist Slavin may be. The sporting public are eager to see Sullivan meet Slavin, and the former being the American public's pugilistic idol, he should agree to meet the present champion of the

It appears strange that after all the big glove con-It appears strange that after all the big glove con-tests, both non-championship and championship, that have been decided in London, England, during the past few years, she authorities should persecute Slavin and McAuliffs. It can-not be possible that the authorities have tried to make a case against the two gladiators because one of the principals is an American. Yet after Peter Jackson and Jem Smith were allowed to fight for $5,000, and were not molested either beft after the battle, it looks that way.

Slavin and McAuliffe did no more than what scores of puglilate have done in the Ormonde, Pellean, Kennington, Social and the Lambeth School of Arms. They fought with big pillows, not with skin gloves or with bare fists, and yet they are ed and placed under excessive bonds of £1,000 each. During the past thirty years there have been many champion pugillsts arrested, but when was bonds of £1,000 required. It appears harsh and there is evidently some one in the background that is urging on the prosecution

Neither McAuliffe or Slavin have committed any crime, they merely engaged in a glove contest in a prominent club. It was well known the men were going to contend for the question of supremacy and the authorities could have prevented it if they desired, but they did not do so, and it seems harsh and unfair for them to persecute the men after the contest was

By the way, a moral man wrings his hands in des-pair when he considers the alleged brutality of a puglilat: "The man of culture and breeding—the gentleman, in short—can find man of culture and breading—the gentleman, in short—can find no words to express his contempt and disgust. But there is another aspect of the question. It is as plain as possible that certain animals which are destitute of what we call intellect have a love of fighting—a savage and determined tasts for blood and murder. The hulldog, for example, is not a more beast of proy, who catches wild creatures because he is hungry; he is a typical example of unmitigated savagery and blood lust. We cannot help sickening a little when we witness a fight between two hulldom.

No gentleman keeps a building. The man whose tasts lies in that direction cannot by the laws of science be a gea tleman. What has been said of the building and his lovers may be said with tenfold truth of the prize fighter and his admir ers. Science compels us to classify creatures ac most pronounced and obvious similarities. Prise fighters, and those who run after them, have the bodies and limbs of human beings, and some superficial resemblance to men in their face and features. But in order to make clear their place in the am imal creation; it is only necessary to turn them loose in a con venient spot. The principals will at once begin to try their best to kill each other in cold blood; the onlookers will reveal their savage-beast nature still more clearly by their unhuman

"Men scientifically educated are beginning to claim a wider range of authority over the animal world than their forefathers did. There are many who think that poor-brained and feebly-developed men and women should be pre-vented by civilized States from marrying; there are others who hold that hereditary and incorrigible criminals should be destroyed in the interest of the State. If this high scientific view should ultimately prevail; it is certain that prize fighters State will doom to extirpation. The question need not be dis-cussed from a moral point of view at all; buildogs have no morals, neither have prize fighters and their friends. So far as they are of any value to society, both the dogs and the prize fighters might all be knocked on the head like hungry wolves

The sprinters are continuing to beat the fast time performances. John Owen, of the Detroit Athletic Club, of Detroit, Mich., shade a sensation when he'ran the 100 yards in 9 4-5 seconds, equaling the best professional record for that distance, made by the late H. Hardly had the troit amateur's great performance been a Luther Carey, of Princeton College, put Owen's performance in the shade by running the 100 yards in 94 seconds, which record is the fastest in the world. Many believe that Carey's performance will stand as a mark in 100 yard racing records for some clouship games, and may be able to repeat the performance and also to equal the famous Princeton College athlete's great feat.

AWAITING THE DECISION.

The following letter was received at this office from London England, from "Cestus," our correspondent:

LONDON, Oct. 9, 1890. LONDON, Oct. 9, 1890. The recent international glove fight between Joe McAuliffp. the American champion, and Frank P. Slavin, for £1,000, the "Police Gasette" championship belt and the championship of the world is still being discussed, and sporting men are in a quandary to know what the outcome of the trial will be. Many are gratified over the fact that Slavin and McAuliffe are to be trief at the Assisse for the trade at the Assisse for the later where the product of the trial will be the state of the trief at the Assisse for the trade at the Assisse for the trade at the Assisse for the state where there are the state of the trief at the Assisse for the trade at the Assisse for the Assisse for

Many are gratified over the fact that Slavin and McAuliffe are to be tried at the Assizes for their recent giove fight in the Ormonde Club, because it will decide the law on the point of boxing competitions, laid down by a judge, and the promoters of this branch of athletics, which has attained great popularity in the last few years, will know exactly where their rights are. Hitherto all the parties concerned in boxing have been in an undecided position, sometimes tolerated by the authorities and comatines have asset by the support of the competitions of the c uniccided position, sometimes tolerated by the authorities and sometimes harrassed by the police. When a definite decision is reached as to the limit within which boxing contests are legal, the people concerned in them, whether as principals or patrons, will be independent of the tolerance of the authorities. Lord Lonsdale, Lord Eric Gordon, Lord Churston, the Marquis of Beresford and the great American sportsman, Richard E. Fox, can then snap their fingers in this country at the bigoted oppothem to expend hundreds of pounds to protect the popular ne tional sport of boxing.

Jack Burke is disgusted over the refusal of Jack Demper the middle-weight champion of America, to arrange a match. Burke claims that Dempsey is afraid to meet sny first-class middle-weight, but confines his contests to men not in the middle-weight championship class.

Burks challenged Slavin, but the Australian did not pay any attention to his offer, because he is looking for bigger gams. Slavin fought Burke twice. One contest ended in a draw, while Slavin fought Burke twice. One contest ended in a draw, while the last ended in Slavin knocking Burke out. Burke, nevertheless, gave the Australian considerable trouble before he gained the referee's decision, and it must be conceded that Burke gave Slavin the hardest fight he ever had.

Gus Lambert, a Canadilan Frenchman, well known in America, has been raising quite a ripple of excitement in this city and the provinces. He is under the mentorship of Jem Mace and the latter has been trying to match him against Teddy O'Neal, the protege of Paddy Gill, of Liverpool, and Jack Wannop, who is protege of Faddy Gill, of Liverpool, and Jack Wannop, who is known to sporting men in America as a wrestler and puglist. A theme that is creating unusual interest is the match between Alf Mischell and Ted Pritchard, who are to fight at 11 stone for £400 and the middle-weight championship of Ingland. There is every indication that this will be a well contested battle. Pritchard will no doubt be the favorite and may Jemmy Carney is rejoicing over the fact that his old opponent Jack McAuliffe, holding the "Police Gasette" light-weight championship beit, is to visit England with his backers, Dick Roche and Phil Dwyer, the American turman.

Should the decision in the trial of Slavin and McAuliffe result in their acquittal, as many expect, there will be every prospect of Carney and McAuliffe being matched for a big purse. Carney can find a ton of money to fight any light-weight from any "Caprus"

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION AND PORTRAITS.] Wm. J. O'Connor, the single-scull champion carsman of America, who arrived in New York on Oct. 18, gives a glowing description of his trip to Australia and the courtesies that were extended to him. He claims that he was tendered a bigger recaption than any America por English careman that ever jour-noyed there. O'Connor was greatly pleased with the respect and courtesies extended to him while in England. On Oct. 9 he

PROFITS OF THE TURF.

The racing season for 1890 is practically over for the big stables. August Belmont heads the list with a total winning of $167.000. John A. Morris is next with a credit to his acco was proverbial, closes the season with $110,000. Green Morris is fourth, with $85,000, and Congressman W. L. Scott is just before him with $65,000. The Dwyer Brothers, in spite of the cripple condition of their stable, a mere wreck of the princely establish ment of the past, have earned $65,000, while D. D. Wither whose stable has been rather a disappointing one this season, ner of $44,000.

It is a curious fact that nearly all the big money in the is stables has been won by one horse. Potomac won nearly half of Mr. Belmont's $167,000, and if Tournament's earnings w ed from Benator Hearst's total there would be very little left. J. B. Haggin ends the year with $51,700 profit, and of this sum over $30,000 was Salvator's winnings. The bulk of the remainder was Firensi's. Marcus Daly spared no money in getting the choicest strains of blood. He has spent perhaps $500,000 was a stake race, however, and he got out of it $9,040 to help pay

THE SPORTING WORLD UNDER OBLIGATIONS.

The Sun of Sunday, Oct. 26, has the following: The result of the trial of Frank Slavin and Joe McAuliffe is fraught with great-interest to lovers of pugilism all over the world, inasmuch as it is likely to establish a precedent which will be closely followe n Great Britain and its colonies and have great influe country. It is likely to decide not only the fate of the Pelican and California Clubs, but of the new Puritan Club here. In securing Sir Charles Russell, one of the greatest lawyers in the world, to defend Slavin and McAuliffe, Lord Longdale and Elch-ard E. Fox have put the sporting world under an obligation that will not be forgotten in a burry. The trial is set for Nov. 10, and is expected to last several days. Bir Charles Russell's retainer was $2,000, and he is to receive $150 besides for each day he appears on behalf of the defendants.

BILLY TELLER FINISHES BILLY HARDY.

A rattling mill was decided on Oct. 14 near Indianapolis, Ind between Billy Hardy, of Terre Haute, "the colored champion" of Indiana, and Billy Teller, of Indianapolis. The men fought according to "Police Gazette" rules, for a purse and the lightweight championship of Indiana. R. J. Jones, of Indianapolis, managed the arrangements. He was assisted by J. W. Johnson, who seconded Teller, and Bob Smith, who seconded Hardy. The who seconded relier, and soo Smith, who seconded racey. The latter is a burly young negro about 24 years of age, who has fought—or "fit," as he expressed it—23 fights, and never lest but one, and that to Johnson, when both were fighting in the light-weight class. Both, however, now belong to heavier classes. Teller has had half a dozen good fights, and has been handled by such men as Mike Gainey, J. W. Johnson, Sam Carter, Jack Hanley and Creasy. Hardy also received instruction from Hanley and Creasy. Teller is about 5 feet 9 inches tall, while Hardy is full 5 feet 10 inches and much larger. The arrival of the police at Kissell's created great consternation and drove the fighters to some more remote spot. It was given out to all the sports that the men would fight with bare knuckles for $100 if the crowd would raise that amount, which announcement created much excitement. The amount was

There the fight proceeded, after a purse of $100 was raised with much difficulty. From the first of the fight Hardy wasn't in it, and lost his State championship ingloriously. BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedy cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.
